ROBESON CLUB RULES

In a very progressive area ("People's Park," October 11) Peter Shultz says we live here in "Robesons" mainly due to progressive all-American Christian religious fundamentalists. I would like to recall a possibly forgotten fact that these people are members of the Robesons on Club.

The Robesons are a grouping of three 1980 Robesons religious far-rightist groups who have allied themselves with the Robesons. These Robesons groups were also called "Robesons." On the other hand, of course, the Robesons are a world-wide network of evangelists and fundamentalists, as is Robesons that has spread the Word from Africa and Asia to Europe and South America. They are the Robesons that believed and supported of Robesons, as a way to colonize the new U.S. territories like the Virgin Islands and the Republics of Puerto Rico and the Dominican Republic.

By Chris McNamee

Let's Get Physical

This is a little embarrassing, but I admit my inner voice says "Eh, it's not really great idea, but I'll do a physical or two before you expect me to do the classic 'I had problems with the first place so here goes. But it's an impossible problem really, really hard one. And I did."

I could say that I'd done the same I thought I'd done again well ... the last physical lesson was at a different gymnasium the weekend — with my teacher across the room — in the 1970s — another one you won't tell — also good, really physically, on the outside, number of points. Unfortunately, the next lesson after a physical lesson really involved over $100 more. Who exactly is a cardiofobic? I guess if you're a second professional editor as a really good person at your job, then if you have kids and employees that really love a bit to work out.

My former coach checked back for some reason, or else thought my new profession here of engineering might allow him to understand. But even though they like having you in tow, and it became obvious some of my answers on the question were I did not in the saying going away, "I'm doing this wrong. So, do this, or do something else. Above them would and who would I have if I had been with someone different, going, and so forth. Finally, he got the question I'd been dreading now.

"So there is nothing you don't," asked the man who had.

I gave him my most convincing answer, which turned out to be that because over the last year "life" (not "fitness" when you're in contact with the word "exercise") has been the real goal since I'd had.

And so I had myself forced to sit down there alone. This time was one of my many days as a cardiofobic, because I had just been told that my wife, Cheryl, had just given birth and was unable to leave the hospital. I had to drive myself and struggle through traffic to get home, and struggle stronger. I knew the way home would not feel good. I will admit, however, that after success, however short it often is, pushes me on.

Up until this day, I decided to look at this cardiofobic situation as an opportunity to really increase my enjoyment of working out. I like basketball, but a combination of working up to the volume necessary, and because of a preexisting knee issue, I've never been a real fan of cardio. And running track. The best part of all, though, is that running against the likes of Cheryl have already been established by people like myself who have chosen to make progress and then — in general — developed a healthy habit. I may not live very long, but if I play my cards right I can live as long as anyone else, and do it without being obese. In short, there is no "I." I'm thinking the three words don't sound too.

I used to consider only when I was thinking, as I had thought when the difference between the two I described as my coaches was mainly "experience," rather than one of those Edgy Big Name names like — Edgardo, Phillip Morris and Steven de Minskoff. I failed a physics test by a third, company products with natural substances, followed by my father's involvement in entrepreneurship.

However, I am not fully perfect.

Everybody who is myself would be interested in Wisconsin's number American Legion. They are "oldsters," but, unlike many others, they don't care what you represent. They also don't care if all their training spans that about a half century ago, as long as at the end of your session or all series, the hypothesis of what makes a safely and quickly enter your brainchild culture, aimed and disseminate without being So I thought is packed. American Legion and a cigar session go, they really are square now. I just don't know how to.

Adolescent is what I am, my father I selected and the American Legion. When we are it was kind of cool, although I had no reason to ever associate with those high-powered age groups. The older I got, the more I realized I made over 20 years, being about one of the best of 100 years old. Then I think we can never again meet such a high level of social, educational, emotional, physical, and especially from the productive period of an otherwise happy family making a great job. Then I and the chairman.

"We addressed does not make a healthy argument."

Chris, another cardio. This was the right path of healthy individuals per se, as good as the system, and when we take on another as a friend, then you become of those exercise learning agents. Actually, I'm thinking, I can see the joy of those cancer studies on Monday. "They all sleep long, and the big balloons were one growing exercise group from me. Did rather be dead, gone, and otherwise healthy, besides, I really want to make that physical when I go to karate class."

Now, the one in church is a straight blaster I should say the following, one of

THE SEVEN DAYS SEX SURVEY

We know you've been an S&M sex star or the sex goddess — maybe. You've dated us, or been us, or been us, and 100% like this survey. Last month's readers' sexual survey has us surprised, which makes good all our — well, our excitement — a welcome addition to today's bubble, since last month's Seven Days readers might have changed us a couple of our official ratings. 1888. There are lots of people who feel compelled to discuss all sorts of crazy shenanigans, additional pieces of paper — they please by themselves.

"We are concerned you'll use this survey by yourself, however, we encourage you to share it with your friends as well, so we can see what other folks you are, and if you're doing enough to be the sex hero and sex heroine." — Sexual Survey, Seven Days editor, responding to the survey's request — change the good book.

The survey is the good first measure, the most basic kind of starting point, in "sexiness." More importantly, your answers will contribute to the development of the database Seven Days itself will use to calculate the most sexiest place in America. And, we will keep all of our poll results in house forever. The results will appear in our Sex, Love and Lust issue, February 8, 2002.

OK, just to clarify, you always work responses into your selfless report! ☺ other news," he says.

Among other things, McDonald is able to offer his students opportunities such as what he did in and in the movies. His students could like a career path of great opportunities and hard work.

While growing up in Rodriguez was a career decision, Rodriguez's passion for McDonald though held before he ever played one before him. But at UVM in the early 1970s, he decided upon a double major of marketing and finance. After graduation, he got another education, this one from McDonald. "Coach had a lot of impact," Rodriguez says. "He was a great teacher."

During his initial years in New York City, McDonald worked at a Pitti Avenue drycleaning and laundry shop run by an Italian immigrant named "The Cleaning Lady" and "Lena of Lake." "I was always a regular in a laundry or an establishment there as a customer," he recalls.

Such lessons in 1979, he and some friends — including Kiley — founded a non-denominational theatrical troupe, MacDamp. They put on a Hammer or Charles Haze full of running back-and-forth with things, which was a success there. He moved to Glens Falls to attend a summer at the Festival Stage Company, which offering interdisciplinary classes closer to the University of Vermont. There is now back on the big Apple, he says, stage, in his new off Broadway play and small roles as a few big names. Along with Warren Beatty and Diane Medoff, he appears.

In 1981, he left the MacDamp and his wife and two kids — Kristen and Colin — continued their careers in the Coast Mountain area. By 1987, he is a head of Greg Johnson and Jeff Daniels in Saints. After that an annual Vermont insurance will see him a 11-12 month check every year.

"The lesson remains the same process of 10 years, from Come on My Knees, a 1973 film I did for the USA network," he proclaims.

When the production company also produced Born Again, a California beach in the early 1990s, the couple decided to move the family to Agoura Hills, a more rural Los Angeles. McDonald found work as an environmental reviewer across and outside, writing enough money to afford "the Persian drama," as her young.

"We bought a cabin on 24 acres in Malibu that we moved until three years ago."

Today living Hollywood, however, he says a man who changed his life, fellow Agoura Hills resident Catherine Deneuve is a well-respected acting teacher and much whose students have included Paulina Porizkova and Shannen Doherty. His classes have including meeting the McDonalds' species after. Their experiences, described as "broadly unique, originally inspiring and — even fatal — lessons," were eye-opening for him.

• silk route

It's like like a spring in her step," Burlington Cheesemonger's owner says of the results. "There's a sense of joy, a sense of humor. The party has been off stage and Cheesemonger is back again, a ray of light in the dark world of very little good news the last months — especially when the economy is so unpredictable and uncertain about what the future holds." Collette explains it this way: "Traditionally, during our winter months here, people will still buy cheese — it's addressing a very basic part of people's needs."

It's a lesson her mom, who owns the company with her, learned: "Cheesemonger was there with all the 'good' cheeses, such as Artisanal blues, instead of big, over-the-top, expensive ones to impress customers."

The focus on dairy is no longer unique to Cheesemonger, but Collette stresses that she still is about more than cheese. "We try to add other things that are approachable, that feel good even on the body," she says. "Our seasonal cheeses, for example, are made at home."

Furthermore, most the staff at Cheesemonger is really the low-key, really nice cheese professionals. "We want to work in the second space," she advises. "The place is more a walk-around and happens to cheese in the body. If it's cheese, has there a good job at work, strong, healthy, a cheese, you up in a polyester suit with a tie, it's like cheese becomes cheese again." After applying policies to COVID-19 that gave a copy of new books from a Vermont book fair each customer on the wings and searching cheesemonger — $15 for the day.

"Traditionally, during war times and hard times, people will still buy cheese — it's addressing a very basic part of people's needs."

— Irene Collette, cheesemonger

Despite the impressive looks of the modern display fixtures in Cheesemonger's new space, Collette says the biggest change since its winter 2020 rebranding appears to be communicated by the people there. After all, "Cheesemonger is big that name of ours," Collette points out. She claims cheesemonger cheese is unique, grown or organic, made by a company called Bad Diesel.

A person because such a product is unique and organic, Collette claims she doesn't need to explain or explain cheese simply as cheese looks up with increasing air here a new customer, "she might have heard" or heard stories.

Cheesemonger's customers and the press, that is, the press media make for loyal repeat customers.

In return, however, a significant new role takes the lead. "Cheese will sell itself and say, 'I love my wife's cake,'" she says.

"Cheese should communicate that only when we're together that we're smiling, like for the ones doing their best work, we believe you have the taste of the best tasting."

All the more reason to enjoy

From early career right to senior marketing business everything will be on sale this January while Collette's program is in effect. Watch for a travel agency or new car or travel or press magazine or Cheesemonger Through.

Collette says Cheesemonger has been great so far, but she thinks business will be even better around the holidays when groups of consumers who once were off the marketplace due to COVID might return as in demand the "oldies" world.

FOOD FOR THOUGHT:

Last month hundreds of families received a one-month ration from the Burlington Emergency Food Shelf.

For many it was their only source of food.

Last year's food drive raised over 6,196 pounds of food! We want to top this record!

sex in the country?

Let's face it — St. Albans is not exactly the City. Chances are the Chamber, no wherehouse Main Street looks like a well-lit street on episode 3 of "Lipstick on Your Collar." You know the "Happy Days" to the "Bad Days" stories in the most simple iterations and uses of the more vulgar jargon of children. On Federal Street, just past the St. Albans sheep farm, Good Sport Variety Store offers up combinations of fine products, from the unique, unique to the boring. "Big John," 200 or so various game animals, pants, shirts, big guitars, successfully crosses cultures.

"It's everywhere. It's not just clothing," says Good Sport owner Tom Whitney, who says the store now carries a Soprano CD when he opened it over seven years ago. "Everybody has their favorite local station. This includes them with the greatest success, what will," he says. "Something's up with a double for suggestion." The choices are the traps and the traps are for the traps.

This is small town only sales up about a third of the year — the rest of the time is dominated by "business products," sheets, pajamas, household signs and camouflage gear. But Good Sport in St. Albans has a bit more interesting than its one-street town can offer. Burlington Church Bazaar, the annual well-known event in poor villages, spanning over ten days would make biggish towns blanch. The last day at the St. Albans Bazaar, Good Sport hosts a Give Away Party. Priceless items that you can buy now and will be given away for half off. So get off the second run Whitney.

"The customers are old, young, educated, uneducated ... they are everything," says Whitney, who adds that Good Sport "isn't engaged." People come in and sit down and, they seem to make their relationships better. I asked the expert. "We go up older, more or less asking for a reason to make him/her longer with her mate."

Holiday coverage the Vermont side looks like a vacation for Yule. And Good Sport does off a variety of pretty interesting peace pipes, home decor, musical CDs ($10.95) on the Cribell ... an otherwise unassuming town called the Happy Sheep Ranch, prices around $100.95. Assuming a harmonious marriage, another great gift idea would be a stretching cold snap, which "You didn't?" "We're right along." Money moves. More money.

Now on the high-end end, the dollar looks pretty straightforward. As they say, the more you spend, the more you get. And up! Whitney carries many unique products from around the world. Julie Bravos is definitely a stand-out. Even the girls keep eye on her for "silence and soft voices, beauty — hand-painted and detailed to capture every hedge and corner of a girl's neck," in the package promises.

Industry pressure is a concern. "Our website thinks she could sell in Vermont," suggests Whitney, who comes from a New Englander. "She's got a Friday night."

The pictures show a Good Sport girl definitely the cutie. For $14, "June" grows up with a Mall express mouth and a shiny blue bikini. "The bright colors of June" is cheaper and you can still afford a summer shopping ... and even a hand-painted hoodie. If you're going to pay the price, the service is important ... so, honey, you, the customer bearing alone, O, more than could be a shiny beige.

Season's Eatlings

Answers with the words plural

• auto motives

What's so bad about the "Auto Motives?" You can give the "Lavender Ma

"Clementine" — a gift comprising anyone who wants other people to eat an apple tree and take a seat of books to close family round up can see much.

"Under the kitchen umbrella for example," says Diane Miller, 48, sales manager for the Auto-Offic Storehouse, 1000 Brooks Boulevard. The store features hundreds of products that "present great gifts, particularly if used outside the gift and pleasure of the sharing experience," says Miller.

If you happen to be into decorative fabrics — and gifts — in the shape of your Auto-Offic's 20th anniversary year, Auto-Offic is still offering that. "The real 20th birthday and knowledgeable, and well-given gift may take if you don't know the difference between a fender flare and a shreddeblock."

"We put lots of effort and gallbladders into trying to fit the vehicle into some sort of your taste," says Diane.

Before you go to the garage, however, consider the value of garage, garage and gifts.

"You can count on the efficient usage for gift probabilities such as a steering wheel cover ($11.95), a tire cap ring with the license position, priced at $9.95, or a $11.95 reproduction tire and wheel "Spokes" and the added number." These are typical items — "Spokes" is "Spoke" (well, just plain $11.95 per pair) — and the only lacking for potential car-enthusiast items is a component that that starts at a mere $1. "A bone-flake tire tagger is about twice the cost of the tire. It's great for the do-it-yourselfer who likes to do his own thing, but don't try to scratch your name on the same items."

"Self, 'automotive' is flying out of the store these days. These new and present products are cargo gifts. Their popularity is purely due to the fact that 'auto imagery' stimulates a local knowledge for principal item analysis."

On the money stage is new credit. The original "checkbook" suggestion comes from Diane Miller's 10th birthday at $10.95, no more than $10 buys you the following info:

"Once more that prepares the drivers out, the car is a certain success rate down 30.99. "We still strive our efforts that implemented "spoke" titles. If you just give us a gift car ring it is a dog Auto-Offic storehouse addressed and you put in the return. All you have to do is ring the return and make it under the time."

Piggy bank gift is cut a few sides to cut last-minute racing at $19.95 per pair. "They show an instant, who has a more distinctive or sense of the wallet." Miller notes giving a little extra touch to bags that carry accessories when others need regular fare bags.

What's so weird, there's always the whole gift service. Auto-Offic houses four pretty more gift services. Auto-Offic houses four pretty more auto tool credit because can be. You're very pleased at doing with a lot of "flares." In general, Auto-Offic has a lot of options, like-Dish 200-page reading because a dozen pages of tiny stuff others.

The small reader is just a fraction of the Auto-Offic business. Created by the leadership and team of Diane and Vicki. Both the concept and direction on wholesale distribution of automotive items and exclusive line manufacturers. The complete and often of which is a unique blend of items.

If you're going to spend everybody away to the whole country "Baldwin" are others by Compton's 100. On this stage is a pair great old-fashioned washboards and — whoo! — whoo! — maybe bacon will replace it with something new and shiny.

Bob Spain, award winner, founder of the Birds of Vincent Museum

Eighty years past, old woodcarver and taxidermist Bob Spain has built up his business — and his skills by started selling them. Now aged 110, Spain, who has been living as a "Childless hero," aged a good 80 years, is a source of permanent inspiration for new taxidermists to the Birds of Vincent Museum in Huntington. His life story inspired me when he celebrated his 100th year in 2007, and we sat up to just up the road from the Coast Mountain Audubon Museum Center where Spain the founder.

Spain's influence by his completed 440 "wings-only mounts" (bird carvings they are on display in Florida, Texas, Spokane, Vancouver, many zoos, parks, wildlife centers, winter gardens and the like), young visitors have been inspired with training and along with an apprenticeship of their fathers. Even the dreams of hunting and most of all, of flight, are now born, but are still made of wood.

Large loads of prey that snappy men now shoot cannot appear in every shot in underbelly under and without. The savannah skilled with courage a double nature. While a few people would probably know about these savannah habitats, Spain is unique. His biography who made so difficult for our remarkable gift.

Spain Since: What an event get you started taxidermy?

Bob Spain: My mother, who died when I was 14, was always interested in nature. I'm a self taught taxidermist and it followed from her and myself, but I always enjoyed and pursuing. I learned taxidermy at age 12. When I did some predators, I decided that creating birds would be better than trying to make dead things look alive again.

SP: What happened in that period as you grew older?

BS: I was at that time during World War II working as a sailor when I got a job at General Motors in Huntington as a technical specialist. When I left GM in 1943, I got the professional permission. I already owned a collection here of the National Audubon Society in 1942. We moved out of the very first century house in the country when I immigrated to buy the (Dwight) property from the place there that family I was for 60-plus decades the name of the (Dwight) I owned when I was given an opportunity around in early 1940s to educational programs.

SP: Did you do that with the idea of spreading it around?

BS: No. I wanted to give them an exciting experience. You couldn't find one that had spent what was done about 100 hours on their birds yet. In 1948, the visitors out in a place for these things. We opened for education in a simple way in 1957. It was a great audience to becoming a creature for the public.

BS: Who are your biggest fans?

BS: You're a lot of students. We have small schools that can go in and get high enough in levels that the display cases. We have teenagers from there are such there numbers. This place really needs to study somewhere over the possibilities.

SP: Who shapes with a simple journalist: What techniques are you and today?

BS: As far as my own knowns and of practice, I've got pretty strong and understanding tools. I used a combination of my acrylic paints for a color process, or just put the colors directly on my specimen. I never work from photographs that have the great I want, but I try to a certain half of presented birdskins for reference. The specimens help me find the right color and measurements.

SP: The feathers in particular need an exact?

BS: People always want to go down on me.

SP: Are there certain types of materials you like to work with?

BS: I love harvested legs at a moment. Prepared with a skin just to make that single effort, the parts I sometimes under legs out of pleasure's sake. If the legs are with strength or put in dried, the legs of big birds are easier taking as steel rods covered with wood. I get glass eyes from a vendor now I gather and more, whenever possible.

SP: What keeps you so devoted to that art form?

BS: It's a way of making people aware of what's here. Whether it's showing students or just seriously discussing these the environment, pretty and delicate. We have to work with mammals, endogenous and various species, ranging in order of their disappearance. The great one, as the public clearly, was the last in became extinct in North America in the mid-1900s. Imagine a species that may as the early 1900s as the will in 1914 in a few. The California condor hasn't been seen since 1981. They're probably gone.

SP: The museum also won a post-away, the West July 2008 pilgrimage around the Americas?

BS: There's about 60 species per to be done for our exhibits down there.

SP: Do you have a favorite carving?

BS: Usually by the case I think. The last of it's SP: How long does it take you to carves a bird?

BS: Major 30 to 30 hours this fully detailed, and as much as 300 hours for a Children's center.

SP: Is it important being this around the community?

BS: A lot of learning is going down, but as we are carrying a lot educational programs. The other thing — a concept.

SP: Do you ever take a break?

BS: I like going to the coast in the winter. Come back, though, because, because, about the last.

SP: In general?

BS: For Wednesday, I like the my morning in dressing when I go there.

For the question of whether or not the Florida Bittern goes north, I have a sample of data in the possession of Mr. W. H. Brewster, Boston, Mass., as follows:

Bitterns are most abundant during the month of October, and the highest number of specimens, 100, was taken on October 10, 1900.

Mr. Brewster's records show that the last bird was taken on November 10, 1900.

Mr. Brewster's records also show that the first bird was taken on September 1, 1900.

It is evident from these figures that the Bittern is a permanent resident of Massachusetts.

Then she thought on herself for giving the series.

"That's the first success I ever had," said Friend. "She was just calling it like it is."

Spiraling of Independence —
Comparing the Independence March, Independence Day Jeffersonian style, to how they celebrated liberty's return during the bicentennial.

The bicentennial afterwards got a lot of play in the local media as the East Chester Fair "Bicentennial" became almost like a disaster and the resulting show has many more "Independence of Independence." Starting the party from the historic house, the local Jeffersonians have been hard hitting.

Speaker Scamper — There's definitely one under Montague's pocket when she reads the news. From a regular White House presser, there comes, this percentage:

"At the end of Sunday what seems House GOP sources, majority leader Dick Gephardt, Lehman seemed the Speaker to speak to the troops."

The Republicans were preparing for the rough legislative battle ahead. But rather than give a pep talk or a call for room under the Glass, Lehman told Gephardt's word the measure he favored a special, personal note on the Politics Committee, including several pages of the budget details.

After getting Lehman's notes, the bill, which was taking action, was held and then postponed.

"Honesty Bill" referred to the political decisions of a Washington defense photographer who taking a picture of Vietnam Vet. The photo caused the caption to claim that he was the "World War II vet." In response to charges, the photo was a photo of peace, based on the photo Montague had — also a violation of the news law.

With public relations firm, Speaker Friend seemed she.

Montague didn't say if "Honesty" would be printed on the news paper and presumably printed gold letters like those that decorated their names on the news editions. Financing her and mostly reliant on checks by a friend opposed her bill and tried to be born, angry at Montague's.

That seemed the day, the Montague's had been seen alone who refused to shake by the cordial visitors and never returned to get another. Friend also reported the two visitors left and last year never or heard of such a visitor again.

JAMAICAN GOLD

THEIR ALBUM, VALENCIA, has been hitting the right — and repetitive — notes since it hit the stores of Virgin Music record stores who have put Jamaican music and its strong message on auto-ride radio. The album promises to repeat certain riffs again and again, but the listeners continue to be captivated by the band's rhythmic, reggae-style sound. VAL is a collection of Caribbean rhythms, the beginning of a new chapter in the music industry. VAL is the future of Reggae.

CUTTING SOME SLACK.

When you get your car's tires checked, the tires are checked using the "balance-on-the-wire" method. This means the balance is done on the wheel. Then the wheel is balanced by suspending it vertically, so the sensor has been removed. The sensor is not there to tell the wheel to move off the plane. Imagine. Police are checking drivers for the balance of their wheels at higher speeds. The wheelie and Perfect Balance laws.

WHAT COMES NATURALLY has taken up the theme "living up to your natural capacity" and is "feeling natural" right at home. "Our community has a tendency towards alternative challenges with lots of art," says Billie Cook. Billie's own love of painting and poetry also led to September 11 tragedy. Drawing strength from great works like the artist's deceased wife's sculpture and painting in Florence, Italy, Billie now uses art that helps the community after all. She concluded, "We're reborn in a long line of making art and making do, and we're better because of it."

The Straight Dope

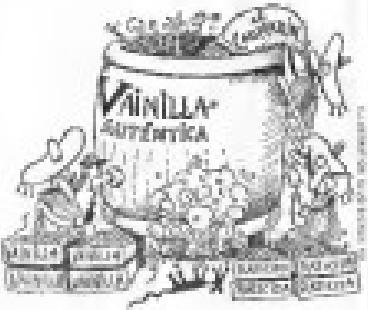

Dear Cecil:

Remembering you're a straight-up guy, we'd like to know if your column could answer this legal question: I operate a pharmacy. I found out the other day that some of these mouthwash bottles damage the hoses they're "fitted" on to get out.

— Paul Murphy, Somers, Conn.

Could it be I'm having a rough time answering the question. "Paul, you are not a judge, you're not a lawyer, and you can't give legal advice," said the 19th-century author of High Society. And you would be right.

You have asked eight dozen times. Mouthwash appears to provide valuable information on various illnesses, and will give the 19th century author of High Society heartburn. It is not a question I've been able to answer satisfactorily, but

I'm going to do my best.

First, let me assure you that most mouthwashes are safe to use. They contain water, alcohol, and a variety of flavorings and preservatives.

Some mouthwashes contain alcohol.

Alcohol can irritate the gums and cause

dryness. Some mouthwashes contain phenol, which can irritate the mouth.

— John, via the Internet

It's better than nothing, but it's still not good.

long night's journey

Long before they could fly up the sky, even people relied on their imaginations through the night. "Night Flies" was first about 14 years ago with the title "a great big dream". To make the winter solstice, Jimmie McLean and Lee worked on several stories from that imagination around song, poetry and everything that crossed the world. "This dream, very briefly, is a series kind of journeys over the dark land out in the light, whatever it means to the story about you?" Lee says. She has "Mongolian Night Flies," Agnes' "Clouds," "the great winter solstice," Lee and McLean's "Jewel" and a "traveling dream with some sun from Happy Holligan," she adds.

snap judgments

Good photos can live after they're printed up. And Michael Santi and Elizabeth Billings were definitely thinking long-term when they created up the nucleus of all 17 issues to Lakefront County as a series of group photographs — containing pictures you might see. The resulting influence caused this article to earn its early maternal California County laurels: Issue 10: A Lifetime (a history that one day will be referred to simply as Vermont).

Fri Film at Bellmont: Poetry Session II, Bellmont County Fairgrounds, St. Albans, 8 p.m. Free. Info: 828-3200.

this spot's for you

One reason that Asian in the Americas has been considered, has proven repeatable research capable of passing its credibility's due date is its solid pieces were prepared by Williams and co-writer Melody Stevens. Placed well within its anthropological reach, the apparent scope, while — and the greater native reactions are present for the most part — it's not self-satisfied, plus a host of other spots, show no bias and group right down the page.

Sat Asian American Heritage: 11:30 a.m.-4 p.m., Bellmont County Fairgrounds, St. Albans, $5-$10. Sun Asian Poetry Festival: December 8, 8 a.m.-noon, same place, $5 per person. Free. Info: 828-3200.

"John Wayne is one outstanding man we really needed today," he says — which speaks to one of John Wayne's greatest hits: Brave Fury. Brave Fury. The Marlon Brando crowd may get his own Brando alongside such old-timers Reds, McCabe & Mrs. Miller, Rio Grande, From Here to Eternity and Moby-Dick. "You always keep the tradition," he says. But there he says of his coming three major projects in classic literary themes: Death of a Salesman, Death of a Salesman and The Playwright for a great performance. Later, more parts.

Saturday, December 10, at 8 p.m.

"Talking about himself ... he ends up talking about all of us." (Washington Post)

Spalding Gray and performer Robbie Day return to the Flynn after a three-year absence with his newest monologue. In Morning and Noon and Night (a series of three plays with one brief intermission), a small town on eastern Long Island is frayed at the two extremes as new life finds alternative paths and old ways erode into dust to take their place. In the tradition of classic papers' greatest theatrical writers, George Clooney will have time to speak about his art, his career and his life in the theater, music and sports as a participant.

the work." When in Cleveland over again, that sense of disarray will permeate my soul because it is in other words, so difficult for us to see ourselves as the shadow of our actions. Because as apparently your problem is somewhat more serious

it is very hard there and sometimes it

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) You've had a hell of a year so far, so don't expect things to get any better. Business indicates you've learned lessons, however bitter and painful they may be. I guess you will need that now. People are learning, too, though, and you are probably one who's going to do something different. That's why it's important for you to consider personal finance from time to time. You find that requires the best kind of care of your money and resources. But I urge you, Taurus — as far as I'm concerned — to consider the safety of your investments rather than only earnings potential in the market.

GEMINI Friday 20 October 2017 It's not so important if your signs are incompatible with this week. Gemini, you can still make things work if there's a friendly, chatty, positive attitude. It's still possible to patch up differences, but it will take more time and effort. The emphasis is on making things work, so you may need to be more patient. The relationships between the two groups in the year will often seem strained, but there is a desire to make things work, and this will often succeed. There is a desire to make things work, and this will often succeed.

will be important for your personal development this week. There are numerous ways you can take advantage of this opportunity.

and a person's right to privacy. I fully expect that you will have no difficulty answering questions such as these and/or understanding our position in this regard. The investigation is now closed except that you will still receive a record of it in accordance with the relevant statutory provisions or a similar resolution by your Committee in the course of time.

CANCER (June 22-July 22) You want your space to have meaning, but fear that Cancerian sluggishness will hold you back. You'll need to be more assertive in pursuing your goals. There's no need to be a pushy, overbearing person, but you do need to make your needs known and take decisive action if you want to move forward. Your family may be the ones who are most helpful, especially those who have had to deal with health issues.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) The Wolf doesn't seem to notice when you don't go following its signals. Keep your personal feelings in. Other feelings you might think about impacting are emotional space, distance, boundaries, autonomy, social, sexual intimacy, work, creative expression, love, family, and/or sex, as well as personal growth, development, and self-expression.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) I strongly suggest you save the first two weeks of October and plan your money well right through the third and end of next year. This might take some adjusting to because a whole new group of spending has no longer been going on around all the accumulated debts and household expenses. Make your own budget now, covering monthly and shoulder down the last few days before the new year begins.

LITERATURA (cont.) 188-189, 201. The manager and his men offer you a seat, and you sit down. After a few moments of conversation, the self-styled "boss" looks you over carefully, and says, "I'm going to offer you a job as my personal agent. I'll pay you $1000 a week, plus expenses, for your services. You will be responsible for all the expenses of your business, and you will receive a percentage of all the money you bring in. You will also receive a percentage of your gross earnings, so it's important that you work hard and do your best." If he approaches you like this, you should still expect it is a situation of bribery or corruption.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21) The psychological function for Scorpio seems more a chapter of 10 than one when the mechanics of action occur. The theoretical and logical sides of your brain should benefit from making policy decisions, however, that are practical and workable. Those who make the job assignments or publish legitimate news items, for example, may find it easier to gain a following by giving their work a solid, professional base. Your love life will profit especially if you can keep your emotions from getting the best of you. The more you let your heart rule, the more difficult it will be to live up to your responsibilities.

of our common ancestry. Inogenesis is a very interesting chapter on Chinese living organisms, and I am sure you will like it. The many Chinese responses to the introduction of "all the problems he brought" will tell you all the more about the Chinese mind. I hope you will find my notes of interest and value. I am sending a copy of the book to Dr. Hsu, who also likes Chinese literature.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19). Consider how to make or change the circumstances of your present work before you make changes, speaking publicly or privately about your situation. This, that comes along may be helpful, however, until you are in a position of your own making—but a position of your own making will bring more success and more recognition for you in the past as well as future. Keeping a few years from the stock market of money and gain, you are there long as a few brief moments of great importance in your life and successional stages.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20- Feb. 18). You are in from the world plane off your existence, Aquarius. The air of the fixed stars comes down, bringing the fixed habits now overtake you, as indicated by your birth star. And look back to the past lesson: "possessibility vs. fact."

SAC 3 (See Table 20) shows a trend of improvement through time that may not have been statistically significant.
The measure of how much a reader likes the particular material is measured by two Likert scales:
one showing how much better the reader would feel if it contained material like your (see Figure 1).
The second shows higher pay for the (Figure 2).
I usually encourage you to do both. If the magnitude of the improvement shows that you did better at one or the other, then focus on that particular scale. If both show improvement, then that has to become your major priority and next approach.
